Suquamish Chairman Leonard Forsman welcomes the gathering to Suquamish

Executive Summary

On June 30, 2016 the Kitsap County Commissioners and the Suquamish Tribe hosted a Homelessness Workshop to review strategies and develop an action plan for addressing homelessness in Kitsap County. The event was attended by 125 people. The program offered information about homelessness from national, state and local perspectives, including a panel of individuals who shared their direct personal experiences with no home. Speakers from the Kitsap Continuum of Care presented examples of support services in Kitsap County. Author Andrew Heben (Tent City Urbanism) told of tiny house villages he has helped build, and Lloyd Pendleton outlined “Lessons Learned in Utah” regarding the concept known as Housing First.

The workshop goal was to formulate and commit to working together as an efficient and effective homeless response system to make homelessness a rare, brief, and one time occurrence in Kitsap County. This report contains the recommendations developed in the break-out groups that day, and the evaluations we received about the forum. The next steps are to convene action groups that will address the recommendations and work toward the goals set by the workshop attendees.

Recommendations from the Workshop

Kitsap County's Homeless Housing Plan has been updated for 2016, and prioritizes issues for action. The 2017 priorities were determined through efforts of the Kitsap Continuum of Care Coalition's Homeless Housing Plan Action Team, as well as survey information from Continuum of Care member agencies. These key strategies are:

- A. Preserve and create affordable housing units.
- B. Prioritize serving people experiencing unsheltered and/or who are chronically homeless.
- C. Increase funding for affordable housing units and programs that remedy homelessness.
- D. Integrate planning for homelessness and affordable housing with other planning efforts.¹

Each workshop table was labeled with a strategy, allowing attendees to self-select the topic they wanted to discuss. Facilitators from the League of Women Voters of Kitsap County and the Continuum of Care asked the groups to explore actions and potential next steps, involvement of their agency, and areas for involving policymakers. The ideas include:

Preserve and Create Affordable Housing Units. (Strategy 1.3)

1. Establish the Affordable Housing Task Force
 - a. Identify leader(s) for the task force – ask commissioners and mayors or other elected officials to be the champion(s).
 - b. Also identify other stakeholder organizations to be involved: Realtors, human/social services, financial organization, county and cities, such as planning commissioner, assessor.²
2. Partner with Landlords
 - a. Landlords meet potential renters
 - b. Pool of money for repairs
 - c. Ready for Rent programs

² Others who need to be at the table per Lloyd Pendleton: funders, housing authorities, business leaders, faith-based leaders, formerly homeless citizens, community leaders, advocates, county staff.

3. Explore Alternative Housing Models (e.g. 30-50% AMI housing)
 - a. Bring people together who are working on the tiny houses movement to coordinate efforts
 - b. Every community needs an ordinance similar to the one passed by Kitsap County

GOAL: 20 people in any combination of alternative housing modules in 6 months

4. Seek New Funding
 - a. Ask Commissioners to put a 1/10th of 1% Homeless tax on the ballot
 - b. Educate elected officials and citizens on the need for funding

Presenter and Author Andrew Heben

Prioritize Serving People Experiencing Unsheltered and/or Chronic Homelessness. (Strategy 2.4)

1. Form Crisis Response Teams
 - a. Centralized numbers for someone to call (211, 911)
 - b. 24/7 crisis line/triage center – providers can refer to the team for subject matter expertise
 - c. Homeless Youth Crisis Response (new and existing programs) – onsite therapist, FT outreach specialist, and 24/7 crisis line (staff and volunteers)
 - d. Kitsap Connect – KPHD, BHA, police, EMS, Harrison Hospital, Salvation Army, and KMHS
 - e. Court Diversion (Poulsbo)
2. De-criminalize Homelessness (e.g. Increase legal outdoor living options)
 - a. Find suitable government-owned land
 - b. Option for law enforcement to deliver homeless individuals for a legal place to stay
 - c. Safe Parks
 - d. Clean, low barrier shelters and transition accommodations

GOAL: Commit to a pilot project in 6 months

3. Provide Support for Housing First Units
 - a. Establish community need – collect and analyze data by September 30th
 - b. Community education – provided by Kitsap County Human Services no later than September 30th

GOAL: Plan a scattered site project – 2-10 people by January 1, 2017

Increase Funding for Affordable Housing Units and Programs that Remedy Homelessness (Strategy 4.3)

1. Secure Additional Funding
 - a. Identify known sources of funding (LIH creds, project-based vouchers)

GOAL: Propose a “demonstration” program to attract funders (state/federal)

Integrate planning for homelessness and affordable housing with other planning efforts. (Strategy 5.3)

1. Promote Cross-sector Planning
 - a. Identify champion within each area
 - b. Identify stakeholder area of overlap and intersect (Salish BHO, CAC)

Poulsbo moving toward homeless housing program in Nelson Park

POULSBO – Nelson Park could soon host a transitional housing program for homeless women.

The Poulsbo City Council approved a letter of intent Wednesday night for Mayor Becky Erickson to pursue a contract with Coffee Oasis to run such a program there. With supervision from the nonprofit, the house will be a way to help homeless women get on their feet, Erickson said.

The program would be operated out of the park's caretaker home, which would host five women ages 18-25, each for as long as two years, Coffee Oasis executive director Dave Frederick said. Residents would move into the home through Coffee Oasis' case management system, which would help the women to find stability through employment, education and housing.

The house would be managed by a resident supervisor. During their time there, residents would be required to work in the park, doing tasks like lawn work, weeding flower beds, maintaining trails and paths, cleaning gutters and drains, and washing picnic tables.

“This is a hand up, not a handout,” Erickson said. “We are going to help them move on with their lives.”

Said Frederick: "It's a win-win in terms of providing housing, but also providing for a need that the city has in cleaning the park."

The park's longtime caretaker had been living in the home and maintaining the park, but decided to retire and recently moved out, opening up the opportunity, Erickson said. The city won't charge Coffee Oasis for rent or utilities, but the nonprofit will pay the salary of its staff member at the site.

With a need for low-income and affordable housing throughout Kitsap County, Frederick said, "It's just another way for the community to say, 'We want to do something about this.'"

The idea is a unique partnership with the city, Frederick said, one that could be implemented elsewhere.

"There is the potential that this could be a model for other parks around the state for providing an answer to homelessness," he said. "We're interested to see how it works and how it could be a model that way."

Frederick estimated the new program could be up and running in the fall after the home undergoes renovations and plans for the program are finalized.

Nelson Park is located at 317 Lindvig Way, near the head of Liberty Bay.
